◆ Steel structure building

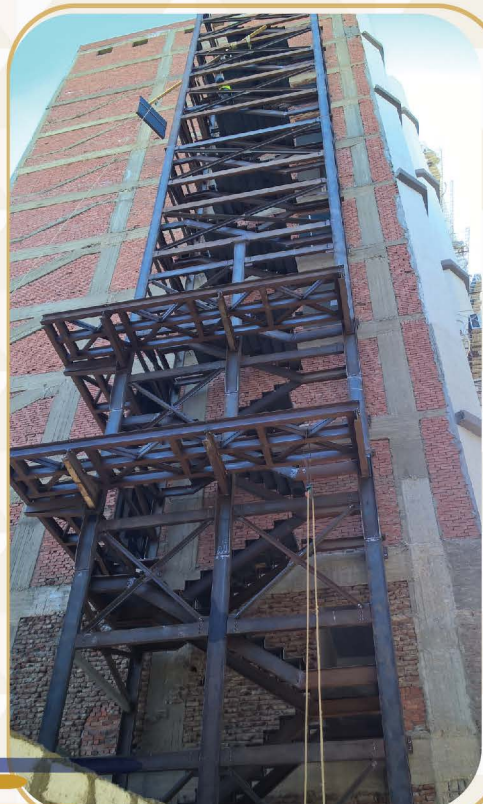

A photograph showing the steel framework of a building under construction. The structure consists of a series of vertical columns and horizontal beams forming a large open space. Several workers are visible on the beams, some sitting and others standing, engaged in the construction process. The ground is dirt and there are some construction materials scattered around. In the background, there are other buildings and a clear blue sky. A yellow banner is at the top right, and a blue banner is at the bottom left.
